These photos were taken at a Russian spa. The water in each of the bathtubs is called naftusya and supposedly has healing powers. It tastes like shit, but people drink it fanatically. The photo where the lady's legs are getting covered in goo is an ozocerite treatment. That's this petroleum-based, clay-like mineral that allegedly cures rheumatism and arthritis. Fifteen minutes a day like that is supposed to do wonders.

After collecting old recipes and late nights of taste testing, we developed Sailor Jerry Spiced Rum. A 92-proof blend of Virgin Island Rum with spices, caramel and other natural flavors. Like a true sailor rum, it's strong but goes down smooth. We think you'll like it. If you don't, you can go buy a girlie rum.

Young Gay Urban Americans by Vito Fun

Cesarin: Don't bottom for bitches. Do you want a girl pumping you in the ass? Why let a guy who acts like a girl fuck you?

Damian: I'll turn the straightest nigga out, cause they're cheap and gullible. Just give them a blunt and a bottle of liquor and they're done. Then it's all fun and games. I can offer the best ass he ever had, and I'm tighter than his girlfriend.

Rayquan: I can make a man feel better than a woman can, because I know what I want and I know how to get it. I don't have big lips for no reason.

Steven, aka Superhead: If a girl says, "I can suck dick better than you," I'll tell her, "I'm Superhead, and no one deep throats like I can."

I recently spent a couple of weeks with a young gang from South London as they went about their day-to-day business of collecting, weighing, bagging, and selling drugs; listening to pirate radio and early Mobb Deep; and talking about how many people want to kill them. For a bunch of kids with no education and no job prospects, it seemed like being on the run or under surveillance gave their lives some type of meaning and structure. I casually asked one of them, "What are you doing tomorrow?" and he said, "Boy, trying to stay alive. Y'know what I mean?" Ouch.

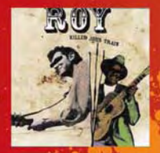
LUJO RECORDS SUMMER 2006



ROY ROY KILLED JOHN TRAIN

LUJO040

"Roy Killed John Train" is second full length and fifth overall release by the band. The band has previously released records on Fueled By Ramen and Initial Records. "Roy Killed John Train" is a significant leap from Big City Sin. While the melodies, smart lyrics, and genre-hopping of previous work are still present. Roy has pushed ahead into new territories. Favoring messed-up chords to standard major-chord folksims, sparse drumming to bashing cymbals, delay to distortion. '60s and '70s artists for inspiration instead of indie records from the late '80s and early '90s, and quietly sowing the seeds instead of crashing out of the gates. Roy has taken a new approach to their band. Roy consists of ex and current members of Botch, These Arms are Snakes, and Harkonen.

THE DARK ROMANTICS ANOTHER SONG...EP

LUJO043

The voice and brains behind the bands Denison Marrs and The Party People, Eric Collins has combined what he loved and learned from both projects and some of his favorite music into The Dark Romantics creating a darker, sexier, groovier sound with enough blues and twang mixed in that you can't help but to get up just to get down. With brother-in-law Dave Lorenz, who also did time as the Denison Marrs drummer and lead guitar god of The Party People, as his partner in conjuring up the new midnight sound, two songs from The Dark Romantics' debut ep were recorded out west with Jason Martin of Starflyer 59 behind the wheel. The rest were recorded in sunny Florida by the bands and Aaron Marsh from Copeland. A great first taste from a band people will surely be talking about very soon.

BABY TEETH FOR THE HEATHERS EP

LUJO041

Baby Teeth play Southern-fried anthem rock minus the beer bellies and bandanas, prog-disco minus the stringy hair and capes, and falsetto wails from the hallows of a glittering stage all fight for attention, but don't let the ironic tone of this write up fool you—they mean every last bit of it. They made the EP on a dare, with each member working in complete isolation at home, the only rule being that the title had to be "Heather." In a way these three songs are broader than a regular album 'cause you get to witness all the chops that usually get left on the editing floor. Jim Cooper made sparkles gallop across the horizon; Peter Andreadis made a slinky cowboy, umbrella-drink jam; and front man Pearly Sweets composed a deeply mellow, tender experience. Also included is a brand new song performed by he whole band and a remix of "End of Actress" from he Baby Teeth Album.

RED & GOLD YOUR NAPOLEON

LUJO024

Closer in resemblance to a hit and run than to an album, this EP will hurt you and then leave you. 5 quick and abusive songs featuring multiple desperate vocals, crass guitars, with secret melodies buried somewhere in the wreckage. Sing along and sing aloud, because it won't last long, and soon you'll be craving more from Red and Gold.

Brian Posehn's Live In: Nerd Rage reveals the hilarious observations of a self professed nerd and life-long fan of heavy metal. Walking Across America by Aaron Huey

It says, "What nourishes me also destroys me."

Veterans Day in the town of Versailles, Indiana. I watched speeches and prayers and 21-gun salutes, then drank a few beers with the VFW crew. Here, a local high school cheerleader stands at attention during a ceremony to honor the war deaths of Versailles.

I found these guys at a crossroads on the Whiteriver Apache Reservation in Arizona. There wasn't much conversation, just a silent pause on a cold, sunny day.

This is Oweena. He lives in a tiny trailer in the desert outside Bernardo, California. He was born Owen, but one day when he was little his father came home and caught him dressed up in girls' clothes and makeup, so he ordered his mom to throw out all his boy clothes and start treating him like a girl as punishment. As you can see, the plan kind of backfired.

Yayo is a 17-year-old member of the Insane Gangster Satan's Disciples gang in Chicago. The Satan's Disciples were constantly in gun fights with the Vice Lords, whose territory was literally right across the street. The Disciples cannot leave their neighborhood without being shot at, and no one can enter their territory without being shot at as well. The gang shares a dozen or so guns which are used in nightly homicide attempts. Yayo is checking a gun to go do a patrol. After this shot was taken they started planning a murder in front of me. The place got raided later and they all thought I was a cop. Tank, the kid who brought me in, got the shit kicked out of him and I got the hell out of town. The yellow bags by the TV are full of crack and bullets.

Around the time of the Battle of Fallujah I started watching an Iraq War death counter website that showed where each fatality lived. I decided to start photographing the funerals near my home in Seattle. Every week or so someone from Washington or Northern Oregon died in Fallujah. This grave here belongs to a sergeant who was killed near Mosul. He was 24 years old. His wife was eight months pregnant at the funeral.

In 1980, the neighborhood of Love Canal in Niagara Falls was evacuated after the EPA figured out that chemicals seeping up from an old, buried toxic waste dump were causing the residents' kids to be born as disease-prone mutants. We took the Gross Jar on a little field trip to sample some of the toxin-enriched soil from under the fence at the cleanup site (the surrounding blocks were declared "safe" in 2004, despite looking like the suburban post-apocalypse). Along the way we hit up Three Mile Island (site of America's biggest meltdown so far) and the Falls (natch).
